

BROMPTON

The bike guide.

The ideas

It all started in 1975 with a young engineer called Andrew Ritchie, who noticed the city of London was increasingly difficult to get around. His idea? The Brompton folding bike. A lightweight vehicle you could fold small and take anywhere. A true labour of love —Andrew handbuilt and quality-assured each and every bike to order.

The philosophy of the first Brompton bike guides everything we do because it's more than just a bike - it's a useful tool that opens up many possibilities. While it's come a long way, the Brompton stays true to its roots with the same handbuilt quality and ingenious 3-part fold that made bicycle history.

The bike

Few bikes can claim to be as recognisable as the Brompton. It looks different. It is different. It's a useful tool that makes owners smile. The ease of the fold, the everyday freedom, the space and time saved. Brompton bikes put the fun back in city travel.

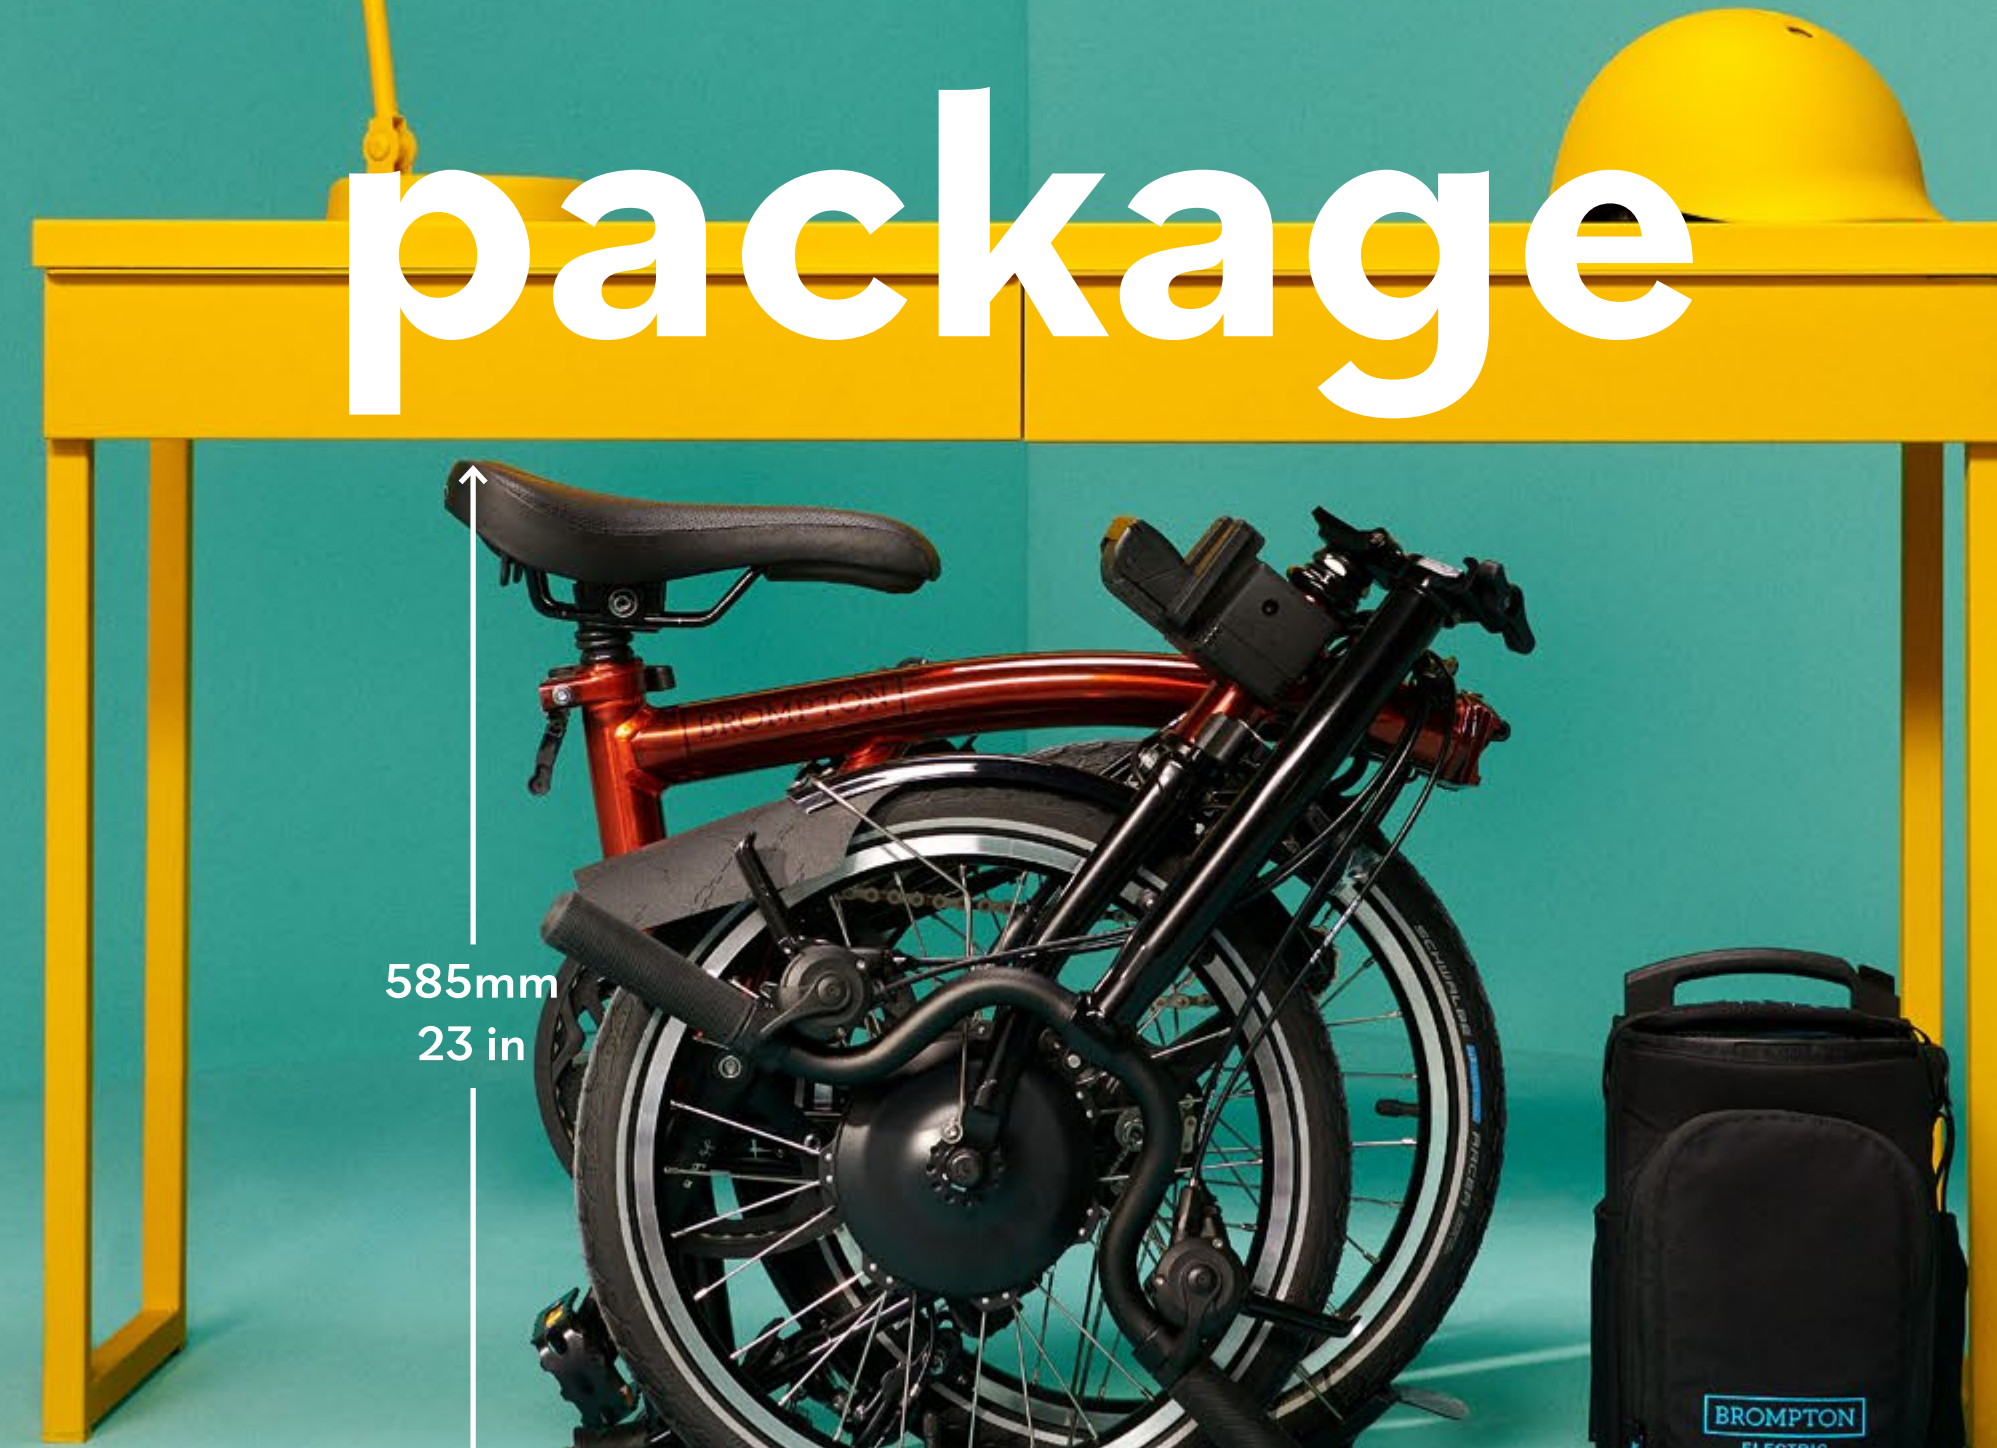

Nothing folds like a Brompton folds

Invented by our founder Andrew Ritchie in 1975, the Brompton 3-part fold transforms the bike into a small locked package in under 20-seconds. Never bettered, just refined. It's the original and still the best.

‘You don’t get Brompton until you get a Brompton’

It fits into your life, indoors and out. Stores in small places. Light enough to carry. And welcome on rush hour trains. You don’t lock and leave a Brompton — it travels with you, so every day just works.

Handbuilt. Hand marked.

Our teams in London and Sheffield handmade every single Brompton bike. We're proud of what they do. That's why each frame is marked by its maker. With a 7-year frame warranty and access to parts, you can enjoy a Brompton bike for longer.

The average Brompton weighs about the same as:

(11.25 kg / 24.8 lbs)
C Line urban low bar

- A medium-sized dog
- A juicy watermelon
- The small suitcase you packed for a weekend away
- That bag of houseplant compost that lives in the corner of your room
